

Auction stalled, Apperson pleased

SUNOL — The tone of his voice gave no hint, but William Apperson expressed his pleasure yesterday at securing a loan that could save his ranch from auction, and keeps alive his hopes to build a dude ranch.

Apperson confirmed reports that a loan has been finalized to help him pay off an $86,000 debt incurred in the settling of his late father's estate.

He refused to say how much was borrowed, or who loaned the money, deferring all questions to his attorney who was unavailable for comment.

But the son of a famous pioneer family revealed that the loan forestalls a court-ordered auction of his lands. The county was to have auctioned off enough of the Apperson ranch to satisfy the debt. It was feared that the sale, if carried out, would destroy plans to develop a 145-acre dude ranch. Apperson is waging a legal war with conservationist, including the Sierra Club, for the right to construct his recreational facility.

He spoke angrily yesterday about the forces working to block his development.

But he admitted pleasure in securing the loan that saves his family's land from the auction block — land that has belonged to the Appersons for nearly a century.

"There's always jubilation when you save something that's been in the family as long as this property has. It's (the loan) something that we've worked on for a long time, and it just closed escrow."

A protracted battle awaits Apperson in court before he learns whether his proposed dude ranch can be built.

He was asked whether sale of some ranch land will be necessary for loan repayment, if the guest facility is rejected.

"I can't answer that right now," Apperson said, "but I certainly wouldn't go into debt if I didn't have a viable piece of land behind me."

Holiday crunch begins, stores braced for blitz

Christmas season begins today. Forget that the actual holiday is nearly a month off. Ignore the fact trees aren't even standing in lots yet.

For shoppers and storekeepers throughout the area, this is the time for jingling bells and tinkling cash registers.

The day after Thanksgiving is traditionally the biggest of the year for retail merchandisers. It should be no different today.

Here's a sampling of what happy shoppers can expect.

Santa Claus, sales, specialties and longer opening hours are used by store managers locally and elsewhere to promote Christmas.

Mervyn's in Dublin has arranged for Santa and three young lady helpers to arrive at their door today at 10 a.m. He will be part of a parade beginning at Dublin Chamber of Commerce, traveling along Amador Valley Blvd. and ending at the store. The Dublin High School band will accompany them.

"And our pre-Christmas sales are in progress," said James A. Daugherty, Mervyn's store manager. "We've increased our stock and given the store a holiday look with decorations."

As far as promoting a specialty in the store, Daugherty said they hadn't done that.

"Although we have put in a good supply of needlework kits since we noticed increasing interest in that sort of thing," he said. "People seem to like making their own gifts out of them."

"But there's not one thing I could really hang my hat on as being a best selling item," he continued.

The completely casual look seems popular for men, women and children, according to Daugherty. It's the rugby look for men and the disco look for women, he contended.

Daugherty said he had noticed people are looking for better quality for their money.

"Price is not the object as much as style and color," he said. "And people are not as conscientious about shopping at just one store as they used to be. Now they go from place to place looking for the best buy for their money."

Mervyn's holiday store hours have been extended: Monday through Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.; Sunday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Liberty House in Dublin will have Santa twice. Dec. 4 and 11 from 8 to 9 p.m.

Snoopy will have his own special corner in the store. Over 100 items ranging from Snoopy clothes, knick-knacks and toys will be available.

Courtesy gift wrapping and boxes will be available to the customers, according to Jerry Nyberg, manager. A minor charge will be made for specialized wrapping.

"We've increased all of our stock dramatically for Christmas," said Nyberg. "A special feature is the gourmet food and cheese section. Some of the items are pre-packaged and ready for mailing."

Having a baby-sitting service was considered at one time.

"But there were so many problems you couldn't list them all," said Nyberg.

Store hours are being extended to 9:30 every night except Sunday. Liberty House will be open Sundays until 6 p.m.

J.C. Penney, Co., Inc. in Livermore is planning to have its Christmas kickoff today, Saturday and Sunday.

"Traditionally across the nation serious Christmas shopping begins those days," said Bob Bruns, manager. "And our store will be ready to serve the people."

A week before Christmas, Santa will visit the plaza area where Bruns' store is located.

Although the Livermore store is small, Bruns said they had increased stock considerably for the holidays.

"We've also increased the size of ready-to-wear women's fashions and have the layered-look clothing, blouses, sleepwear, robes and sweaters," he said. "We've moved the children's line downstairs but we don't have room to carry toys. The popular matched, coordinate type clothing is available for men."

Bruns said over the last two years he had noticed a trend toward more practical type buying.

"People are putting their money where it will do the most good," he said. "They're looking for the right style and color, but, at the same time, more quality."

"We're concentrating this year on giving customers good, sincere, helpful service," Bruns said.

This J.C. Penney's store will be open 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday; 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday; noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Mormon missionaries

What happens when they dismount

People turn their heads and ask: "Just who are those nicely dressed young men on the bicycles?"

Travelling in pairs, they are Mormon missionaries, spending two years of their lives proselytizing for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

What they tell their potential converts is only half the story. The unseen part is filled with religious meetings, contemplation and a search for a closer relationship to God.

They are generally a serene lot, but being human one occasionally sneaks a wheelee on a bicycle. They laugh together and they pray together.

Speaking to a class of fellow missionaries in Livermore this week, Elder Worwood noted many people not familiar with the Mormon religion "still think of us as a bunch of polygamists in black suits. We're not; we're Christians, and we should impress that on the public."

Worwood, 21, is from Nephi, Utah, where he is better known as Dennis. The youngest of three children in a Mormon family, he decided in high school to follow the experience of other elders who called their missionary period, "the best two years of your life."

He tells his fellow missionaries, "It's not that people reject what we have, but they don't know what we have."

Believing their church is the one true church and their church president is actually a prophet, the youngsters set out to take that message all over the world.

Elder Simmons, 21, comes from Burley, Idaho. He is nearing completion of his term as a missionary, and has seen duty in Carmel Valley, Sunnyvale, San Lorenzo, Los Banos, South San Francisco, Tracy, Modesto, Manteca, San Francisco, Daly

City and San Carlos before coming to this valley. His brother is proselytizing in Finland.

The two men travelled the same route all Mormon missionaries take, spending a week at the Salt Lake City church headquarters for an introductory seminar in the art of spreading the word.

Now, during a meeting, both are seriously trying to learn how to do their task more effectively.

Elder Taylor tells them that to be good "representatives of the Lord," they must project a good public

Utilities vs. homeowners

Supervisor's hard look at taxes

Alameda County Bureau

Board of supervisors chairman Fred Cooper has gone fishing for inequities in the statewide property tax system, and thinks he may have bagged a big one: public utilities.

Where the assessed value of the countywide "local roll" — homes, businesses, agricultural lands — has shot up 132 per cent in the past decade, those of the "utility rolls" have climbed only 6 per cent.

It amounts to "other taxpayers subsidizing utility taxes over the past ten years" to the tune of $138 million, claims Cooper in a letter to the State Board of Equalization.

Property tax revenue generated by non-utilities climbed 176 per cent in the past ten years, but only 32 per cent for utilities. And the county, according to a memo prepared by assessor Donald Hutchinson, could shave 77-cents from this year's composite $13.50 per $100 tax rate if the two rolls had kept pace during the period.

But Cooper is not yet crying "foul." He'll hold off until he hears from the state board, which sets the assessment rate for utilities — regulated pipe, power and telephone lines and railroads.

Utilities had been assessed at 50 per cent of their full market value through the 1960s, Travis Highfield of the county assessor's office told The Times. Following the passage of AB 80, however, the state board of equalization said the rate gradually would drop to 25 per cent.

The non-utility, "local roll" has been held at 25 per cent since 1969.

But Cooper isn't satisfied with the explanation.

Why, he asks the state board, have utility assessments fallen from 10.5 per cent of Alameda County's total assessed value of lands to 5.1 per cent in 10 years?

Is the decline common to all counties? Are there any where the utility roll has kept pace with the local roll?

He wants answers and has asked the state board to send someone to hash over the problem.

He also has invited Pacific Gas and Electric Co. and Pacific Telephone and Telegraph.

"I'm not accusing anyone until I get an explanation," he said. "I've asked for some answers because I want to cut property taxes."

Happy holiday

Children and mothers at Gingerbread pre-school sponsored by the Pleasanton Department of Human Resources got ready for Thanksgiving by sharing a traditional dinner of turkey, dressing, cranberry sauce and the works last Monday. Ann Carroll of the department reminds families the department is getting into high gear with the holidays by sponsoring the annual Santa Claus Parade Dec. 4. It will proceed down Main Street from Angela Street to Amador High School. It will feature storybook characters and Santa Claus and is co-sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

County, city wary

Agricultural development snag

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Rezoning agricultural acreage for large lot home development just east of Pleasanton's city line will have to wait a couple of weeks, county supervisors decided this week.

George and Verna Garibaldi, apparently taking their lead from Pleasanton attorney John Corley, want the board to change the zoning on the couple's lot at the corner of Trenery Drive and Martin Avenue. They want the 1.3-acre "L" shaped lot legally cleared for a building site.

Corley fought a similar battle with the board this past summer to gain rezoning on two 5-acre lots. He and the board finally hit a compromise that calls for two $3,000 escrow accounts to guarantee eventual hookup to Pleasanton's future sewer line.

The same problems apparently are plaguing the Garibaldis.

The county planning commission recommends the change, but its staff has reservations.

Staff questions the propriety of sanctioning "illegally created lots," the adequacy of the $3,000 escrow account, and further development in the light of "the lack of utilities."

Both the City of Pleasanton and the county health department oppose the change as well.

The city fears the intensified development "would prevent logical, orderly development when full utilities become available," and health officials point to "the unavailability of sewers."

Supervisors, acting under a request from absent and out-going supervisor John D. Murphy, will hear the petition Dec. 7 at 2:30 p.m.

Playing the taxman blues

The gravelly, bass tones of Alameda County Tax Collector Frank M. Krause greet callers to any of five busy, incoming phone lines in his downtown Oakland offices.

"All our lines are tied up," he says, "and in the meantime, we're going to play music."

The mini-pops concert, in effect for nearly a month, is "a public relations improvement," says chief deputy tax collector W. Elden Dillinger of the county's latest effort at easing the bite.

"This way at least if they hang on, they'll be taken in sequence," he says of some 500 callers who barrage the office each day.

"It seems to be working out real well," with only one complaint so far about a long wait.

The number of calls as well as the tenacity of the callers are monitored so his office will know how many it receives during each of the four financial harvest seasons, and how many people hang in there.

The tape recorded message and music are leased for $670 per year, with the option of applying lease payments to the $2,000 purchase price.

"We'll try it for a year to see if it's worthwhile," says Dillinger.

Other county departments are casting admiring glances at the system as well, he says. Even the state county administrator's office may install one.

"There have really been some nice comments," according to the tax department employee who interrupted the mid-day serenade, although one caller said it was "not his choice of music."

Selections are well orchestrated airplane/ elevator pieces, heavy on the soft, soaring trumpet with the unobtrusive tinkle of ivory keys in the background.

Christmas rush underway

At the end of September, a 428 page catalog is made available. The merchandise in it can be ordered only during the Christmas season with the exception of toys. They can be sent for all year.

A second seasonal catalog with 150 pages comes out the first of October. Its contents are available until the end of January. A $5 gift certificate is offered if the customer orders merchandise costing $50 or more by Oct. 30.

"Toys are our biggest seller," said assistant store manager, Maxine Conner. "We have such a good selection and our prices are highly competitive. People who come in here do most of their shopping all at once. It saves them time and gasoline."

Ward's store hours are: 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday, 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. They are not open Sunday.

Pleasanton teens still hospitalized

Three Pleasanton teenagers were still hospitalized Thursday afternoon as the result of injuries incurred in a three-car accident last Sunday in Pleasant Hill.

A fourth Pleasanton girl, Lisa Estrada, 16, was discharged Thursday morning from John Muir Hospital in Walnut Creek.

Also hospitalized and in the intensive care unit of Muir Hospital are Robert Williams, 31, Pleasanton, and Robert Carrasco, 27, San Ramon. Williams, his wife and daughter were all injured in the three-car pileup Sunday.

Lori Gottschalk, 16, and Karen McKinnon, 15, of Pleasanton, were listed in satisfactory condition at Muir. A third Pleasanton girl, Lindy Jorgenson, 16, had been listed in serious condition.

The accident occurred near the intersection of Taylor and Withers late Sunday afternoon.

Accident on Stanley

PLEASANTON — An 18

year old Pleasanton girl momentarily lost control of the vehicle she was driving after turning from Santa Rita Road onto Stanley Boulevard and hit a pickup parked at the curb, pushing the latter into two other parked vehicles.

Pleasanton Police say Lisa Vegas was reaching down to turn on the car heater about 9 Wednesday morning and veered into the pickup. She incurred a cut lip.

Legal snafu in county phone pact

Alameda County Bureau

Oops! The county's meticulous "911" emergency phone service contract with Pacific Telephone and Telegraph turned up one glaring legal oversight: the project director's authority to pay.

While Scott W. Hovey Jr., receives all notices, calls review meetings and resolves disputes over the system's specifications, nowhere does it allow him to approve specs "of work for which PT&T will be paid," according to a county memo.

That laborious authority was reserved for the board of supervisors.

PT&T project director James I. Foster and Ma Bell's new legal counsel questioned the oversight, and got Hovey his hegemony. Now he is authorized "to review all 911 system specifications for conformance with the standards, terms, conditions and intent of the 911 contract, and to approve or disapprove under paragraph 12 (b) of that contract said specifications for the County."

The Mormons hold fast to their prayers and songs.

Elder Simmons emphasizes a testimony.

Worwood explains a point.

Back on bikes to spread the word

image. There follows a dramatization of the right way and the wrong way to approach a house and a business. During the wrong way, there are giggles as two elders walk in purposely sloppy and using poor language to emphasize the reactions to a poor presentation. "You aren't only talking to the people in the house," says Elder Taylor. "Neighbors are watching you. It's important to walk side by side. Don't let your companion get 15 feet ahead of you. Don't walk across lawns. Walk to the door. You'll be guided by the spirit of the Lord, and the word will touch their hearts." They spend time discussing methods of public relations, from newspaper publicity and open houses to appearances before civic groups and mall displays. During a time of testimony at the end of their meeting, Simmons says, "I learn something from my companions every time I go out with them. I know they all carry a fine spirit with them." One of the most touching moments for him was calling on a cerebral palsy victim in San Francisco. During instruction about their religion, he stopped Simmons and his companion. "I was thinking about my lack of religion the other day, got on my knees and prayed for someone to show me the way." Simmons helped baptize the man two months later, "after answering a lot of questions." Worwood likes to recall a young converted couple in Sacramento who had no religious background before his arrival. "Now the man is a scout master in the church's troop and they have just had their second child after sealing their marriage with a promise of everlasting love — even after death." Their meeting closes with a song: "put your shoulder to the wheel — push along — do your duty with a song we all have work, let no one shirk." Then it's off on their bicycles to ring another doorbell for founder Joseph Smith's version of the Christ story.

Church's telecast on family tonight

Members of the Mormon Church in the Livermore Valley area are helping promote tonight's television special, "The Family... and other living things." Scheduled for 7 p.m. on Channel 40, the show will be aired again on Channel 7 Sunday, Dec. 5 at 4 p.m. The show portrays, in drama, humor and music the family as it often is and more importantly how it can be. The special will be shown as part of National Family week. Some of the stars on the show will be Bill Bixby, of "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" fame; comic Ruth Buzzi of "Laugh-in," Donny and Marie Osmond, the Osmond Brothers and others. Perry Lovell, a valley Mormon mission leader said, "the church produced the program to reinforce the family and to strengthen the home." The show is designed to "foster a climate in the home in which family life can flower and prosper," he said.

Health costs beset elderly

Lesh News Bureau Miriam is not very healthy. She is not desperately ill either. She has high blood pressure, arthritis, and problems with her gall bladder. She is 70. She is not ever going to be much healthier than she is today. And that doesn't make her unhappy except for the medical bills. Even under Medicare, and not being very sick, Miriam spends $49 of her meager $311 a month on medical costs. That is why she is looking forward to the day when Contra Costa County starts enrolling Social Security recipients in a prepaid health plan. "I'm going to be first in line," she has said. Miriam doesn't know just how much the plan can help her. But she said, "It has to be better than what I have now." Each month the Social Security Administration deducts $7.50 from Mir-iam's check to pay for doctors' services. Every three months she pays something over $20 to Blue Cross to get additional hospital coverage to her regular Medicare plan. Last year she went to her doctor seven times. Medicare would not pay until her bill reached over $60 and then would only pay 80 per cent of what was left. The doctor prescribed medicine for her blood pressure, arthritis and gall bladder. He put her on a special diet. The various pills cost her over $20 a month. She does not get reimbursed for any of the medicine. What with all her other problems, the hard choice for Miriam is either to give up burial money set aside or keep on going as she is. The pilot program the Social Security Administration and Contra Costa County are now starting hopefully will take care of people like Miriam. There are many old people who would get along quite well if only they had a little more help with their ordinary day-to-day medical bills. The Contra Costa plan would have the federal government and Miriam share in an enrollment fee which would go to the county's medical services. Miriam would have her medical needs taken care of at the county clinics and the county hospital by county-paid doctors.

San Ramon school plans workshop for volunteers

SAN RAMON—Carol Moody, coordinator of volunteers at Country Club School, has scheduled a workshop for the 101 volunteers on Thursday, Dec. 2 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the school.

The volunteer corps will be greeted with "warm fuzzies," a symbol of school volunteer work that can be worn on the lapel, and volunteer handbooks recently compiled by Mrs. Moody.

Volunteers work with the regular classroom teacher at Country Club in a variety of instructional capacities. Some also work in the library. Included in the group are a few men and 11 senior citizens, in addition to the majority of mothers who assist the teaching staff at least one day each week.

Next Thursday's workshop will open with a review of the Early Childhood Education budget and Title I program by Guy Hockett, school principal.

Workshop sections and leaders will be as follows: Reading, Carol Rowley; Machine demonstration, Alice Cupples; Library—parent use, Phyllis Pangilly; Manipulative math games, Marlene Storey; Expectations for volunteers, Liz Baumgartner.

Foreign exchange students invited from valley

Youth for Understanding is looking for high school students from Dublin, Livermore and Pleasanton who are interested in participating in an intercultural exchange program.

Families in 24 countries in Europe, South America and the Far East are eager to welcome teenagers from the Livermore-Amador Valley into their homes as part of the Youth for Understanding International Student Exchange program.

"This is an excellent opportunity for high school students between the ages of 15 and 18 to experience life in another country," says Phillip Yasinski, executive director for Youth for Understanding.

The organization is headquartered in Ann Arbor, Michigan, and is planning to send over 2,000 United States students overseas next June for a family living experience lasting a summer or a year.

The program is a non-profit educational organization which cooperates with and receives an annual grant from the United States Department of State. Since its inception in 1951, the program has exchanged more than 50,000 U.S. and foreign students in 50 countries world-wide.

For more information, students can contact Morris and Eleanor Mote at 846-5324, Carl and Madge McDonald at 447-5886, Bob and Vicki McBride at 828-5509, or Bob Elliott at 828-4520.

Livermore, Granada project

Students spur blood drive

LIVERMORE—Local high school students are responding for the second year to a dire need for blood donations.

At both Livermore and Granada High Schools, a blood drive will be going on for students and community. All the blood collected will be credited to the community. Any local resident who later has need of blood may receive it free, as long as the local credits hold out.

The county medical association's Bloodmobile will be at Livermore High on Monday (Nov. 29), 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. California Scholarship Federation members are organizing the effort. The girls' gym will be the scene of the collection, which takes about 20 minutes per person and is safe and painless.

At Granada, the senior class will sponsor a collection in the exercise room of the girls' gym, 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 9.

Livermore High school nurse Constance Bentley and teacher JoAnn Cox are helping with their school's drive, while at Granada the sponsors are nurse Geraldine Deck and teachers Ed Brush, Sue Ann Staley and Claudia Wanlin.

Anyone can donate blood except those with chronic blood diseases or certain other disabilities, and those under 17 or over 66.

There's a constant demand for blood in Alameda county, especially during the holidays when many regular blood donations are canceled. The Blood Bank of the Alameda - Contra Costa Medical Association is the only source of blood for 34 hospitals in the area, attempting to supply them with some 60,000 pints of blood a year.

Cal High drama

"The Night is My Enemy" will open a three-day run next Thursday at California High School's Lil Ballou Memorial Theater. The mystery drama is being directed by John Cretan, drama instructor at California High. Amy Darfler as Roane Shepperley and Joan Davis as Hester Fontaine are shown in a scene from the play. Also taking part in the play are Ward Reynolds, Daniel Adams, Tim Darfler, Chris Osheroff, Toni Vavrek, Don Diers, Camille Anderson and Lesley Kay Dannis. Tickets will be available at the door of the theatre, located on Broadmoor in San Ramon.

SAN RAMON—The San Ramon Valley Unified School District will offer day care for children at Neil Armstrong School with registration scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 4.

Armstrong was almost completely gutted by a fire two months ago and most of the students are now attending nearby Walt Disney School on double sessions.

The fire and resultant double sessions have created problems that Superintendent Allan Petersdorf says can be partially alleviated by offering the day care. A charge of $1 per day will be made.

LIVERMORE—A motorcyclist from Modesto was taken to Valley Memorial Hospital from Carnegie Cycle Park late Thursday morning after being shaken up in an accident.

Drug pushers

When "good citizens" want to lash out at the drug traffic, get a bead on the drug pusher, where should they aim?

"Try your next door neighbor." That was the message left by a veteran Pleasanton police officer at a gathering of local business people. He might just as well have been talking to any local gathering, in any one of these fine, suburban communities.

The tragedy is children. The problem is adults. The motive, more often than not, is money.

It is adults who traffic in "the big quantities ... the hard stuff." It can be "prominent business people" who make the dirty business function. And, let's face it, it is "a politician somewhere who can be bought" who helps keep the flow of drugs moving, particularly across international borders, or from "reputable drug manufacturers" and into a highly profitable, illegal market.

We may wonder "what prompts these kids today to start using drugs?" To often we need look no further than the home for a large part of that answer. Even the dotting parent, who lavishes generous amounts of money on their offspring, without any matching vigilance, could well be "a drug pusher."

"We get very little cooperation from the parents," Detective Sgt. Ed Valin told his audience. Perhaps it is our own ignorance of drugs; or the fear of social disgrace; or — and this is the favorite response — "I just can't seem to communicate with my kid anymore."

It is because we don't communicate that the police must try, but again, "sixth graders are hard to reach, while high schoolers think they have all the answers."

So the problem is shoved aside. Buried in school rhetoric of "the teacher's first responsibility is to teach." Lost in the municipal bureaucracy. Topic for a Tuesday noon luncheon meeting, at which less than 25 adults even bothered to attend.

As that cop said, "Everybody thinks the drug problem has disappeared, until it hits some one in their own home."

Taxpayer woes

President-elect Carter believes "the nation's first order of business is unemployment" and he suggests massive federal expenditures to meet that problem.

Mayors of large urban centers argue "decay of our cities need first priority." Again, federal spending is the key.

For home owners and "middle class" wage earners, the unhealthy prospect is more taxes, to help solve unemployment, to save the cities, and to meet all the other "social ills of our time."

The trouble is that taxation is already a "social ill" for many of us. When Senator Cranston sent his top aide throughout California "to hear what the people have to say," this emissary found suburbanites saying a lot of harsh things about taxes.

"Property taxes ... income taxes ... state and local taxes. We can't stand much more." That was the message sent back to Senator Cranston. It will be interesting to see how the man who aspires to be Democratic Whip in the United States Senate responds to that home-owner lament.

Yes, the plight of the cities is very real. And yes, that problem grows worse as more "white collar workers" flee the inner city for the safe suburban harbor. But it will be no longer safe, or even attainable, if the suburbs are to be bankrupted by this tax load, abandoned by those who can longer justify the luxury of a single family dwelling.

The nation solves nothing by destroying the communities which have become one last incentive for millions of "working class Americans." The home-owning wage earner is not an unlimited source of federal revenue; neither is he a beast of social burden.

And that is one more fact of life Mr. Carter must come to grips with.

Commission members

The Pleasanton City Council followed the letter of the Brown Act in appointing the Human Services Commission Monday night. But they sure ignored the spirit.

The Brown Act says that committee and commission appointments have to be done in public and the candidates must be interviewed in public. This was done. However, the implication also is that there be some public discussion about the appointments. There was none at the city council meeting.

Instead, each council member submitted his or her top five names from the list of eight candidates. Prior to the council meeting, the city manager privately totaled up the number of votes each candidate got and reported to the council at the meeting which five got the votes.

The public in the audience Monday night did not know which council member voted for which candidate or why. That does not violate the law, but it certainly leaves the public in the dark about what sort of philosophy the city council has about its co-workers serving on a new, important commission.

FOCUS/School noise levels

Rock 'n roll din

The Amador Valley Joint High School District recently acted to insure acceptable sound levels at rock concerts and dances held at Amador Valley High.

Chances are similar standards will be considered for the district's other campuses.

To our knowledge, Amador is the second district in the East Bay Area to do something about the potentially lasting harm of loud noise or blaring rock music on young auditory nerves.

Specifically, the Amador board accepted a report from Tom Himmelberg, an assistant principal at Amador Valley High, which said that in the future a sound-level meter would be placed at school dances or rock concerts to assure that the sound level does not exceed a harmful level. Rock bands or musical groups coming to the school will be apprised of the auditory provision. Should they exceed the 90 to 95 decibels range, the administrator monitoring the meter may stop the event and caution the band and/or call off the event at that point.

While this may seem heavy-handed for a seemingly trivial matter, one only has to learn the damage that can be done when the auditory sense is exposed to blaring noise for a sustained period of time.

Many studies have been conducted to evaluate the effects of noise on the hearing mechanism. The effects of noise exposure are found in two categories: 1) A temporary threshold shift of one in which the threshold level drops but returns to normal and 2) a permanent threshold shift, one in which a permanent hearing loss results.

Most studies seem to agree that exposure to noise levels below 80 decibels will not cause damage to the ear. Exposure to noise about 90 to 95 decibels over a period of time will definitely cause a temporary threshold shift.

Excessive, long-term exposure to 105 decibels results in a permanent hearing loss in almost all cases.

Noise or unwanted sound interacting with sensations, perceptions, thoughts, feelings and needs may have adverse effects resulting in losses in work and study performance, sleep disturbance and annoyance and irritability.

Loud noises have also been shown to affect certain kinds of visual work, especially levels over 90 decibels. Noise can also affect attitudes and feelings. Noise causing a disruption of sleep has been documented to result in bizarre acts of violence.

Perhaps the most famous situation showing how blaring noise or music can lead to or mask violence took place a few miles from the valley back in the 60's.

The rock concert featuring the Rolling Stones held in an area of the Altamont Pass resulted in the stabbing death of one person in front of the band stand as one of the groups blared forth its torrent of sound. What with the sound and the milieu, the violent struggle went unnoticed by most of the huge throng in attendance.

We can recall a personal experience related to excessive noise, that being the sound track of the rock opera - movie "Tommy." Though it received great critical acclaim, many who took in the picture will agree it was an auditory disaster.

Fortunately, schools, residences and businesses in the valley are not compacted like most urban areas — where the sounds of heavy industry and traffic go on almost 24 hours a day.

Parents of Amador students may be thankful that teachers, administrators and health educators such as Maxine Spruiell and Charlotte Severin take the time to research and work out solutions to situations that could be of great lasting harm to young people.

Mailbox clusters

A Congressional view

Honorable Benjamin F. Bailar
Postmaster General
United States Postal Service
Washington, D.C.

This is in response to your letter of Nov. 11 giving examples of the kinds of exceptional instances in which you propose to institute delivery to clusters of boxes or to single boxes behind the sidewalk during the service moratorium period of Public Law 94-421.

The general intent of Congress in enacting Public Law 94-421, in my opinion, was to prohibit the Postal Service, during the service moratorium period, from requiring new delivery customers to accept clusterbox delivery. During this period, in city delivery areas, the Postal Service must offer to provide door or curbside services to these new customers. As you know, many members of this Congress have received many complaints from their constituents about the practice of offering no form of home deliver but clusterbox delivery to persons who are eligible for some form of city delivery service but do not want clusterboxes ....

In the exceptional case where the customers clearly want to receive clusterbox delivery or delivery to individual boxes behind the sidewalk even though the Postal Service has offered other service, as Chairman of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee it is my opinion that the intent of Congress would be complied with in giving the customer what he wants.

But I would caution that postal managers should be sure to verify during the moratorium period that their prefer another form of delivery even though an offer of door or curb service has been made pursuant to law. Written requests by the affected customers or their spokesman, or reference to written local ordinances or recorded deed covenants, seem to offer reasonable methods of verification.

I would appreciate receiving a report from the Postal Service in each instance where the Postal Service has agreed during the moratorium period to provide delivery service other than curbside or door delivery.

David N. Henderson
Chairman, Committee on Post Office and Civil Service

There was a newspaper ad not long ago which hit the problem of war right on the nose. The ad gave the box score about the arms race between Russia and the United States. We led them in aircraft carriers, but they were way ahead in tanks. Or something like that.

And that got me to thinking what a bright world this could be if we could only keep those box scores coming in without killing anyone. The obvious way to do that is: The War Olympics.

I can see it now.

"This is Murray Sigafos reporting from Kuala Lumpur, site of the 1976 War Olympics. And here are the results from today's action. Al Mistah Fi of the Palestinian Liberation Organization won first place in the grenade-toss with a new world record of 435 feet, six inches. Silver medal winner was Rene Belair of France, former Foreign Legionnaire, and in third place Nico Benvenuti of Italy, who built up his arm tossing pizza dough in a Turin restaurant.

"First place in chow line competition went to Joe Doakes, the American GI, followed closely by Man Sing Wo of China, proving once more the rapid superiority of the Western fork over the Eastern chopstick. Benvenuti of Italy was third.

"In the crew events, the American destroyer Charlie McCarthy took a gold medal, followed by Britain's HMS Pimm's Cup with the assistance of four tugboats and in third was the Soviet leitmotifship, The Volga Boatperson."

And so it goes. If individuals can get out their hostilities through sports, so can armies and navies.

—by Ron McNicoll

For reasons that never have been clear to me, Thanksgiving marks the traditional start to the Christmas shopping season. I suspect it is a "tradition" born of Macy's, Ward's and all those other folk without whom Christmas would be just another birthday.

I am pleased to report that our abode has the full Yule Spirit, right on schedule. The lady of the house has been knee-deep in handsome catalogs for days now. Nothing gets her in the Christmas mood like a full-color view of Magnin's goodies.

"What would you think of me in this full-form nightie," she asks, shamelessly.

"If it does no better job of covering you than it does that model, I suspect you will catch cold the first 'night.' I report, wisely. The rules of the game are simple, but vital:

Lady - of - house keeps feeding out "gift hints" from catalogs, newspapers etc. Man - of - house finds clever ways to put down lady's lead without actually appearing to be stingy.

"They certainly have some lovely lamps this year," she announces, then adding, fortunately, "but for the prices they ask I really don't see the quality of our old lamps."

The wise breadwinner moves quickly into that breach.

"I've been giving that busted lamp in the kitchen second thoughts," I announce, thoughtfully. "Bet I could fix that thing by replacing the burned-down insulator sleeve and cleaning the lead-in wires to the thingamabob."

Rule Two: It always helps when man - of - house comes across as highly authoritative on matters of home, style etc. Lady - of - house is thereby convinced that catalog offerings are not always pretty as pictured.

That also applies to food.

"House of David does an amazing job of packaging these fruits and candies, don't you think?"

"Yes," I agree (always make initial response positive) "but do you remember the box of candied fruit Great Aunt sent us a few Christmases back? Bloody near poisoned the entire household. Makes me wonder what they put in those fancy boxes, sometimes."

"The poor dear probably received that box the Christmas before, and simply saved it for us the following year. She meant well."

"More likely she won the thing at the San Francisco World's Fair," I suggest. "There ought to be a law making the candied fruit people date those boxes, like they do with medicines, or the oil change in your car."

If you will observe, preliminary thoughts on expensive gifts are often erased simply by changing the subject ever so slightly. It is an art form that began when Adam first talked Eve out of buying a crate of oranges, I am informed.

Sometimes the best put-down for the gift thrust is an immediate, decisive disclaimer. For instance "Abercrombie & Fitch are going heavy again on expensive games and gifts," says she.

"Have you ever thought of giving some one that Computer Crossword we bought three years ago but never once used?" is my answer. Prompt, effective, and just a tiny bit cruel. But in the game of Economic Survival at Christmas, anything goes.

There is that rule which commands — "When all else fails, drastic action may be necessary to draw subject's attention away from topic of gifting." The following example is taken from our Thanksgiving afternoon review of the catalogs.

Says she — "My these fur capes are lovely. But oh, so expensive! Every time I see all the girls I know wearing their new fur, I wonder how their husbands can possibly afford it."

Says I — "Hey! Is that the pumpkin pie I smell burning? I'll bet that darned timer on the stove failed to go off again!"

It must be noted that such diversions are only good for a day or two, at most, and the intended victim must look to other, more permanent ways of removing subject's attention from expensive thoughts. I have found, from years of experience, that the best defense is often a forthright offense.

"I see where Katherine Hepburn is coming to San Francisco for a limited stage appearance," I announce, whilst she is checking out Catalog No. 7. "Do you think we could get away one evening during Christmas week to see her? I know how you love Katherine Hepburn, and this may be our only opportunity. Why not send the order off right now? And let's go for orchestra seats. They're $12 per, but what the heck, it is Christmas ..."

"That's a very thoughtful Christmas suggestion," she says, putting down her I. Magnin full-color mailer to give me a big smooch. In the do-or-die contest of Christmas Cataloging during Thanksgiving Week, a man does what he has to do, in order to survive.

GOP's bid

Republicans, shattered by setbacks in legislative power in the elections just concluded, are busily musing themselves with their prospects to win something back in 1978. That something is the governorship. They are somewhat encouraged by the fact that President Ford carried California and that S.I. Hayakawa, flying under an only recently adopted Republican banner, unseated U.S. Senator John V. Tunney.

Although not lacking in willing candidates among office holders who have established records in public service, thus giving voters some measurement of their abilities to represent them, rumbles are surfacing that yet another actor will be groomed to repeat the unprecedented feat of Ronald Reagan.

The attention at the moment is reportedly centered on Efram Zimbalist, Jr., of FBI television fame. If Zimbalist can handle the crime problem in real life the way he does on the boob tube, he shouldn't waste his time being governor, he should be the head of FBI. Never in all the years he has been playing the role has he failed to bring the criminals to justice. No matter where the crime is committed good old Erskine is on the scene moments afterwards. And, he always solves the case within one hour.

So Erskine, or rather Zimbalist, emerges as the all American Law and Order man, a clean cut hero. What he is in real life is hardly yet known excepting that he campaigned for Ronnie for President and Reagan's purported support of him as an entrant into the gubernatorial hustings signals right wing tendencies.

His candidacy initially seems more the result of some eager imaginations than an idea of his own. His position on the question hasn't been made known. Still, it is not unusual for those with political dreams to play the role of reluctance while testing the water.

What strikes a disturbing note however is the seeming penchant of some to turn to the film industry to find leadership for the ship of state. Zimbalist is a good actor although he has won no Academy awards and his fame is from playing a stereotype part rather than starring in any great film. He may also be a decent and knowledgeable individual. But his life has been spent in a world of make believe and, for all of its faults, the business of government is totally real.

An actor may be an appealing candidate, considering that identity is established thus requiring no campaign outlay. But whether it be Zimbalist or some other thespian, how many screen idols will California install in public office?

Judging from the muddle the present governor, Jerry Brown, is making of state affairs because of his lack of experience in government, it might be expected that California will be looking for someone with proven ability in public office next time around.

That should be no chore for the Republicans. They have Attorney General Evelle J. Younger, San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson, State Senator Dennis Carpenter and Los Angeles Police Chief Ed Davis all waiting in the wings. And they have former State Controller Houston Flournoy who came within 185,000 votes of pulling it off last time.

While anything can happen in California politics, and usually does, pushing forward another actor as a candidate for governor may be a case of going to the well once too often.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would appreciate it if you would give me some information concerning disaccharide deficiencies. I have been diagnosed as lacking lactase, sucrose and maltase. I can't eat any products containing milk, sugar or malt.

I am confused as to what products contain malt and would appreciate it if you could tell me where I could find out this information.

I know I am lacking certain nutrients and am not sure what substitutes I need. As of now I am completely bewildered about how to handle my problem. I know two of my sons have inherited the lactase deficiency and perhaps the entire problem and I am not sure how to feed them. DEAR READER — While lactase deficiency is fairly common, resulting in an inability to tolerate milk and milk products, lack of the other two enzymes is quite rare.

There are three double sugars that are common in our foods. They are lactose from milk, sucrose (ordinary sugar) and maltose, a combination of two glucose molecules. Maltose is formed from the breakdown of starch from vegetables and cereals.

A deficiency of these three enzymes you mention causes difficulty in breaking down the double sugars into single sugars so they can be absorbed for use. When they are not absorbed the double sugars cause gas, diarrhea and discomfort. Sometimes the deficiency is only partial and the individual may still tolerate a limited amount of the carbohydrates that contain these double sugars.

To help you understand the differences between single sugars, double sugars, starch and how all of these are related I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-8, Sugar and Starch: Carbohydrates. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

What can you eat? You can use honey as a sweetener. It is glucose and fructose, but unlike in table sugar, they exist as single sugars. You do not need sucrose to break down a double sugar into glucose and fructose. Your pharmacist may be able to get you some pure dextrose (glucose) which you can use for sugar.

You may be able to use some well-ripened fruit. Otherwise you will need to avoid all the starches and foods that contain starch. This includes potatoes and cereals.

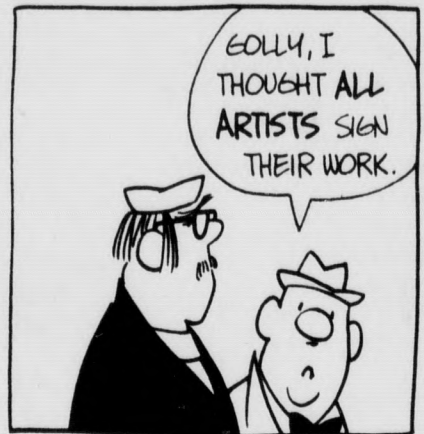

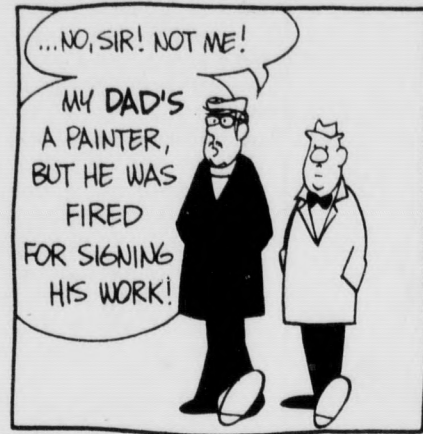

You may want to get some bran for the fiber it contains but you will want pure bran and won't be able to use breakfast foods for this purpose because of their starch content.

Since we don't digest cellulose you can probably eat a limited amount of leafy vegetables. You will have to learn by experience how much tolerance you have to these foods.

You should take daily vitamins because you are not likely to be able to eat a balanced diet. You can eat any protein and fats, which means all the meat group, including fish and poultry. You will probably need to take additional calcium as milk and milk products are the main source for these. You should be able to use eggs but if you have an elevated cholesterol you could use a low cholesterol egg substitute.

If your lactose intolerance is not too severe you might be able to use Lact-Aid that I have mentioned before, an enzyme that furnishes lactase to break down lactose in milk before you drink it (obtained from SugarLo, 3540 Atlantic Ave., Atlantic City, NJ 08401).

Defense not up to snuff

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The 1930 Bridge World magazines all had a section called "Experts at Their Best and Worst." Editor Ely Culbertson occasionally ran a hand where he was the victim, but when Mrs. Culbertson appeared she was always at her best. As a matter of fact, Jo was a great player and her bidding, even in those early days, was brilliant and effective.

Sitting South, she made cue bids in both her opponents' bid suit, showed her spades at the four level, raised clubs after her partner bid five spades and redoubled six spades after her partner went back there. She won the heart lead with

Ask the Jacobys

Declarer has these options.

1. He can accept the lead.
2. He can treat the card lead as a penalty card. In this case there is no lead penalty, but that card must be played at the first legal opportunity.
3. He can demand that partner lead that suit.
4. He can forbid the lead of that suit in which case the prohibition applies for as long as partner holds the lead.

dummy's ace while discarding a diamond. Then she took a successful diamond finesse, cashed her ace of diamonds, ruffed her last diamond and went after trumps. Later on it was a simple matter for her to find West's jack of clubs and her spade slam wheeled in.

The greatest players of today could do no better, but the analysts could. West could well have marked his partner for the singleton club. In 1930 no one bid three-card club suits and no one raised an unrebid club suit to six without four trumps.

Therefore, all West had to do to beat the slam would have been to open a club and give his partner a ruff when he got in with the ace of spades.

Ninth Holiday Classic begins

NOTE: The Ninth Annual Soccer Club, gets underway today at a couple of sites in Pleasanton.

Today, the Times concludes its series of features on the competing teams with a look at the under-14 division.

Lafayette Rams — The Rams, 7-1 this season, are anchored by a corps of 11 players who have been together for three years. They've outscored their opponents, 37-10, and have advanced well into State Cup play the past two years.

Captain Jaime Dickow is an excellent defender as is quick fullback Jan McRae. Halfback Ernie Sponzille has good speed and is an excellent tackler. Fred Leach and Peter Isola are two of the team's more motivated players.

Sunnyvale Red Stars — Undefeated in five games have snowed opponents under this season, 70 goals to two. They were third at the Calgary tournament and first in their spring league and first in the Peninsula fall league.

Jeff Dollarhide controls the all well as does Mark Stahl while Jimmy Mellin is aggressive and strong and Marc Ophus hustles and is an excellent header.

Livermore Rebels — Boasting a 16-2-2 record with 96 goals for and 27 against, the Rebels are a young team in their first year together.

Coach Frank Lego says, "With 11 different boys doing the scoring and five sharing the fullback duties, it becomes an impossibility to pick out any one — or five — since this team comes as close to an all-team effort as any I have had the privilege of coaching."

Also in the Division I group is:

Ballistic UNITED. DIVISION II

Concord Wolverines — The undefeated Wolverines have outscored their foes, 24-4. They are coached by Mike Fernandez.

Fresno Tenaya Stallions — Tenaya teams have always been strong and this one is no exception as they were last year's Fresno City champions. They've been tied just once this year, by another Classic entrant, the Ahwahnee Pigs. They hold a 26-4 score-ing edge this year.

Six-foot, three-inch goalie Brian Luft directs the defense along with fullbacks Jeff Akins and Doug Huene. Jim Solomon distributes the passes to such forwards as Chato Elgorriaga and Mark Hudson.

Calgary Bantam Selects — A team consisting of all 13-year olds, the Selects have compiled a 5-3-1 mark this season with 26 goals for and 14 against.

Captain Glenn Labelle, assistant captain Greg Kern, Paul Gerlitz, Eric Geppert and Brad Kwong all the top individuals.

Fremont Canucks — 3-3-2 this season, the Canucks have managed to outscore foes, 28-18 in their first year together.

Craig Coelha, perhaps the smallest player in the Fremont League, is outstanding, as is fast forward Neil Jacques.

DIVISION III

Vegas Valley United — Heading into their first tournament as a team, the Vegas players have amassed an unbeaten record in nine games and have scored 75 goals to their opponents five.

Ahwahnee Pigs — The Pigs lead their Fresno league and advanced to the Holiday Classic through a local qualifying round. They sport a 11-1-2 mark with 52 goals and seven goals-allowed.

The defense-minded Pigs have never lost to another under-14 team.

Strawberry Park Strikers — In their third year together, the Strikers look back on a record that includes a 32-game win streak as under 12's in 1974. That season ended with a tie-breaker loss to the Dublin Paddys in round four of the State Cup.

Mike Bosco, Steve Whitmarsh, Matt Olejnik, Mark Olejnik, Jim Wardy and Jeff Corner are the top players.

DIVISION IV

Dublin Shamrocks — The Shamrocks are a young team with strong team spirit. 6-2 this season, they have outscored opponents, 25-9.

Newark Toros — The Toros are a first year club with a 5-8-1 record. They've been on the short end of a 39-23 scoring edge.

Stan Pickel, Joey Zapolocny, Steve Brockelsby, Drew Stevens and Ross Elliott led the Toros line-up.

Ballistic America — The host club's entry won the Prince George tournament and also venture to Ensenada, Mexico for an exhibition tour. Their record is 18-5-2 with 80 goals and 22 allowed.

Dave Woodward and high scorer Todd Moore are the offensive standouts while Jim Peterson has filled in well for regular goalkeeper Dave Hoppezak, who's out for four weeks with an injury.

Sacramento Turnverein Tornados — While a young team, the core of the club has been together for three years. They're 19-2-2 this season with 51 goals for and only 12 against.

Double trouble

Golden State Warrior coach Al Attles is trying a new tack occasionally in an effort to correct the club's losing ways. Here two of the Warriors' three centers, George Johnson (52) and Robert Parish (00) watch rookie Marshall Rogers drop in a lay-up. Golden State visits San Antonio tonight at 5:30 p.m. (PST.).

The stuff is back!

Yes, indeed, after an absence of nearly 10 years, both college and high school rules will permit players to once more slam-dunk the ball through the hoops during the game and bring one of the most electrifying plays in the game back out of mothballs.

The anti-dunk rule was often called the Lew Alcindor rule because it was put in seemingly to prevent the big man from totally dominating the college game with his awesome inside ability. Since then, the dunk has only been seen in playgrounds and the pros, but this year it's back.

Just how much effect it will have on East Bay Athletic League play is uncertain, though Granada's 6-7 Joe Wujek is probably quite pleased. Overall, though, the greatest effect of the rule change will most likely be felt in the colleges and in the Oakland Athletic League or Richmond-Berkeley Athletic League.

Still, however, you can bet that players throughout the Valley are working out to make sure that if they ever get that breakaway layup, the ball will "drive, force or push the ball through the basket," as the rule book says.

Dunking, despite its ban since the 1967-68 season, is far from a lost art. Players who can come close have been practicing the not-so-lost art on their own, and especially in college, we shall undoubtedly be treated by the sight of many spectacular slam-dunks this season.

There is, however, a slight deterrent to the dunk. Although the stuff will be perfectly legal during the game (provided control of the ball has been gained outside the cylinder above the basket), it will be illegal to stuff (or attempt to stuff) during pregame warmups. As in the past, each dunk during pregame warmups that is observed by an official will be a technical foul to be shot before the beginning of the game.

The reasoning behind this seemingly odd prohibition is simple. Since the major drawback of dunking is damage to the backboard by those who don't quite get the ball through the ring, the rule book says, dunking should only be encouraged for those who can do it with ease. Most smaller players wouldn't consider dunking in a game, but they might be tempted to try it during warmups, risking damage to the backboard and injury to themselves.

So the prohibition on pregame stuffing was put in to make sure that only those players who can dunk with ease will do so.

Perhaps an even more important change in the rules was also made, but its effect will be much less noticeable. For the first time, girls and boys share the same basketball rulebook. In the not-too-distant past, girls played a radically different game, where only two players could run up and down the whole court, and four others were confined to half the court. That was altered to the more familiar five-players - who-can-go-anywhere situation, but the rulebook was still different. Now, all the rules are the same.

Well, almost all the rules. In California, the girls will use a 30-second clock, similar in effect to the NBA's 24-second clock. If the team with the ball doesn't shoot in 30 seconds, they will lose possession of the ball.

Along with this comes the elimination of the 10-second provision for getting the ball across mid-court, much like international rules.

The rule also eliminates such referee's headaches as the lack of sufficient action clause and the closely-guarded-for-five-seconds situation that leads to a jump ball.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO FILE A NEGATIVE DECLARATION
PROJECT DESIGNATION: RZ-76-23
November 26, 1976
In accordance with the provisions of the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures, zoning amendment application RZ-76-23 has been determined not to require an environmental impact report and a negative declaration will be filed.
The zoning ordinance amendment would change the zoning ordinance parking requirements to require two off-street parking spaces for each dwelling unit with three or more bedrooms on a site and would require one off-street visitor parking space for each seven dwelling units on a site. This amendment would increase the off-street parking requirements of new multiple residential developments.
This zoning ordinance amendment is a result of concern about and subsequent study of the parking problems around large multiple residential developments. The amendment is being made to alleviate the problems inherent in inadequate off-street parking. It is the finding of

PROJECT DESIGNATION: RZ-76-24
November 26, 1976
In accordance with the provisions of the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures, rezoning application RZ-76-24 has been determined not to require an environmental impact report and a negative declaration will be filed.
The land to be rezoned is a roughly 70 acre site located south of Stanley Boulevard and east of the A & R Service Center. Approximately 33 acres of the site is presently being annexed to the city and the remaining 37 acre portion is currently zoned A (Agricultural) District. The entire area would be rezoned to the C-S (Service Commercial) District.
The site has several major drawbacks to development: much of the site has been quarried, leaving irregular terrain and steeply sloping outcrops of the site lie in the Arroyo del Valle creek bed; much of the site may be subject to flooding; the area is not served by a sewer trunk line necessitating development with holding tanks; and the ultimate routes of two major city thoroughfares—Valley Avenue and La Valle Parkway—cross the site at as yet undetermined locations. The development of this area for commercial service uses is consistent with the General Plan. Since development would necessitate future subdivision and design review approvals at which time further environmental assessments would be required, no environmental impact report will be required at this time. It is the finding of the City Manager that this rezoning would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.
For more information on this case, contact the Department of Community Development, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, California 94566, telephone 846-3202.
Unless any written appeals on this case are received by this department within ten (10) days of the above date or publication of this notice in the Pleasanton Times, which ever is later, this decision will become effective.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO FILE A NEGATIVE DECLARATION
CENTRAL PLEASANTON AREA
STORM DRAINAGE FACILITIES PROJECT
November 26, 1976
In accordance with the provisions of the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures, the Central Pleasanton Area Storm Drainage Facilities Project has been determined not to require an environmental impact report and a negative declaration will be filed.

The project consists of the installation of an underground storm drainage facility to replace the inadequate surface drainage system serving the downtown area roughly bounded by Pleasanton Avenue, the Arroyo del Valle, the Southern Pacific Railroad, and Bernal Avenue. Abbie Street. Underground storm drainage pipes would be placed in Division Street, Peters Avenue, portions of Main Street, St. Mary's Street, and Pleasanton Avenue, and along the westerly edge of the Western Pacific Railroad right-of-way. In addition, the existing timber culverts under East Angela and Abbie Streets would be replaced with concrete box culverts.

An environmental assessment has been prepared for this project and may be reviewed at the City of Pleasanton Planning Department. Environmental impacts associated with the project are largely limited to construction site impacts: noise, dust, and inconvenience caused by the temporary blockage of the streets listed above. It is the finding of the City Manager that this project would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.

SUBLEASE OF AGRICULTURAL LANDS
November 26, 1976
In accordance with the provisions of the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures, the subleasing of the agricultural lands of Bernal Avenue has been determined not to require an environmental impact report and a negative declaration will be filed.

Pleasanton has leased all of the City of San Francisco Water Department property south of Bernal Avenue on both sides of I-580, much of which is being used for irrigation of sewage effluent. Approximately 238 acres are proposed to be subleased for farming.

The property proposed for subleasing is pre-agricultural soil and has been farmed for many years. Subleasing the property to farmers would continue the property in its present agricultural use. No change in use would occur. It is the finding of the City Manager that this sublease would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.

For more information on this case, contact the Department of Community Development, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, California 94566, telephone 846-3202.
